QUALITY
Cyber-Singularity Seeker	CF 54
Driven: Revenge on the scientists	RF 154
DRIVEN
BONUS: 2 KARMA
The character has an obsession, something that drives them forward. Everything they do is designed to bring them one step closer to solving the enigma in their life. This can be finding a disappeared loved one, discovering a hidden truth about themselves, or even getting revenge on an old enemy. Whatever the cause, when faced with a clue or opportunity to advance their quest, the character must make a Willpower + Logic (4) Test to not immediately drop everything and pursue this new information. Unless the character succeeds, they will sacrifice anything and anyone to get closer to the truth. On the other hand, such single-minded obsession makes the character a tough nut to crack. As long as the character is actively working a lead, he gains +1 to his Willpower.

GREMLINS

BONUS: 4 KARMA

PER LEVEL (MAX 4)

Characters with the Gremlins quality don't get along with technology. Devices malfunction inexplicably, software crashes unexpectedly, vehicles refuse to start, components become unusually fragile at his touch, and wireless links suffer faltering connections and odd interference whenever he's involved.

For each level (maximum of 4), reduce the number of rolled 1s necessary to get a glitch (p. 45) by 1 whenever the character is attempting to use a moderately sophisticated device. For example, a character with a dice pool of 8 and Gremlins level 2 (8 Karma) would trigger a glitch if two or more 1s result from the test (instead of the normal 4). The gamemaster may also require the character to make a test for operation that would otherwise succeed automatically to see whether or not a glitch occurs.

When describing the effects of a Gremlin-induced glitch, gamemasters should play up the notion of a particularly weird mechanical or electronics malfunction.

Some examples of Gremlin-induced glitches include:

the magazine falling out of a pistol when attempting a critical shot, a keypad inexplicably burning out while entering a code to disarm an alarm system, or the commlink interface converting to Sperethiel mid-sentence when attempting to access a restricted node.

Note that Gremlins is a Negative quality—its effects hinder the character (and probably entertain others). The character cannot use his Gremlins quality to damage an opponent's high-tech equipment merely by touching it.

Anything the character attempts to sabotage using only Gremlins will function flawlessly. (Obviously, he can try any ordinary means of sabotage, but Gremlins will haunt his efforts.) The effect only applies to external equipment and does not affect cyberware, bioware, or other implants.

Low-Light Vision SR5 66

Magic Sense RF 116

MAGIC SENSE

COST: 7 KARMA

The character possesses the ability to detect the use of magic in his vicinity. The ability operates similar to a Detect Magic spell (p. 287, SR5), but use Intuition + Willpower [Astral] for the individual's test instead of Spellcasting + Magic [Force]. The range of the ability equals (Magic x 5) meters, with a minimum range of 5 meters (including characters with no Magic Rating).

Natural Weapon: Kick (Centaur) RF 105

Overclocker RF 148

OVERCLOCKER

COST: 5 KARMA

The character is able to coax more juice out of his gear.

The character may add 1 point of Rating to one of his cyberdeck's ASDF attributes.

This point can be reallocated as desired any time the cyberdeck is reconfigured.

Perfect Time RF 148

PERFECT TIME

COST: 5 KARMA

Who needs a watch when you're around? The character with this quality always knows the time, down to the minute, and has a perfect sense of rhythm and timing. This perfect sense can only be obstructed through prolonged isolation, unconsciousness, or distortion of temporal perception through drugs, chips, or an extended period in the Matrix. This quality provides two game benefits: a +1 dice pool modifier for Performance Tests involving timing and rhythm, along with an additional Free Action during every Action Phase.

Thermographic Vision SR5 66

Vendetta: idk yet RF 159

VENDETTA

BONUS: 7 KARMA

This is some Hatfield and McCoy-level drek. The character is entangled in a blood feud with an individual or group, and no matter the initial cause, the vendetta is now as much an issue of honor and reputation as revenge. The quality means the character has extreme difficulty resisting a confrontation with her foe.

Whenever the character encounters the target of her ire, she must make a Composure (3) Test or else have no choice but to incite a violent confrontation. If the character should ever neutralize their nemesis, they have two options. They can buy off the quality, or someone new will pick up the vendetta, giving the character gets a new nemesis.

Wanted by GOD

WANTED BY GOD

REQUIREMENT: MINIMUM HACKING

SKILL OF 3. CANNOT BE

TECHNOMANCER

BONUS: 12 KARMA

Chummer, I don't know what you've done, but you attracted the wrong kind of attention. You have somehow made it on GOD's Most Wanted list. In case you're wondering, that's not good.

You will suffer convergence when your Overwatch Score hits 30, instead of the normal 40. On top of that, seeing as you are a High Value Target, a High Treat Response squad from the authorities of whatever grid you just got kicked out of will always come bearing down on you. They may or may not be out to take you alive—guess you'll find that out when they come for you.

If you didn't have a list of places to go to when bad drek went down, you could count the number of weeks you were likely to survive on one hand.

Jackie had three different spots to lie low between home and the open-air food market near Touristville—a sparsely populated Cuban restaurant, a former repair shop where some older people of the neighborhood gathered to play chess and checkers, and a rickety clinic run by a cranky old ork. They were spaced well enough that if gunfire broke out on the streets or some gang members started throwing unnerving looks in her direction, she could get to a spot in a block or two and generally stay out of trouble. Yeah, if the gunfire got too hot too fast, she might have to duck behind a broken wall before she could get somewhere more sheltered, but that only happened occasionally.

Today, though, everything was going wrong. A big, roided-out human spotted her from a block away, and she could see a combined hunger and mindless rage in his eyes that told her to stay far away. She crossed the street to get away from him, but he crossed too; she took a left away from her normal route, and he followed.

She walked quicker, moving toward a dwarf and a human who seemed to know Roid Boy and not like him.

The two of them started yelling at him as soon as he appeared, and he started yelling back, then a few others nearby heard the voices and popped into the streets, and they were the type of people you couldn't just walk by because when their blood was up. They started asking questions to which there were no right answers, and their fists would get real punchy real fast.

Jackie was left with one option, an alley to her left.

She didn't know what was down it, which made it a horrible risk, but at present she was way more willing to deal with an uncertain unknown than the sure-thing shitstorm that was about to erupt all around her.

Roid Boy yelled something when she ducked out of view, and she had no desire to hear what it was. This was a rare alley where both buildings near the entrance were intact; one was a burned-out storefront, the other was an apartment building that was falling apart in every respect but still had some residents. Behind the apartment building was an empty lot, but in back of the store was some other old commercial building, with a back door open and a light shining out.

She looked at the door, but four gangers running into the other end of the alley made up her mind for her.

She ran for the door, hoping that whatever was behind it didn't suck.

There were stairs going down, then another door.

The door was unmarked.

She looked up the stairs, worried that Roid Boy might enter the frame at any moment, then knocked on the door.

A voice came from inside. "Hack it or go away." She panicked, and she started yelling and hoped what came out made sense.

"I can't, I don't know what you mean, I can't open the door, but there are people out here that are about to throw down and I don't want to be out here and I can't open the door and there are no places for me to go, please, please, please just open it!" Some muttered voices exchanged words inside, then feet stomped to the door. Mechanisms whirred, the door opened, and an old man with patchy grey hair stood on the other side.

"I've had days like that myself," he said. "Get in here."

If you don't know how to hack, you should. Any advantage in a cold world." She walked in to a room of gear, tools, and chips, random and scattered and all, to her eyes, beautiful. It was a small room, seven meters by seven meters, but it might as well have been a whole new universe.

DATAJACK PLUS Every corp is trying to innovate a little to get a bit more of the market share. And then another corp takes their idea, re-labels it, and eventually, every corp has an offering, too, with almost the exact same features. The datajack plus is the latest in these efforts to get everyone to upgrade or buy the newest tech. Its basic functionality is identical to a standard datajack, offering a DNI link to devices and a filter to handle some of the local interference, but the Plus offers a small cache of memory and a processor system that links up with your commlink (or cyberdeck) with the ability to run programs. The d-plus system comes in a variety of processor speeds and cache sizes to offer a variety of options for the executive with an eye on the top spot or the electronic security specialist that needs an edge because the shadows keep getting faster and more deadly. > The jack-plus is becoming the crutch of wealthy wannabes, rather than the next step in the hacker evolution. Too many punks trying to use the myriad of programs instead of a quality deck or genuine skills. > Respec > That's one point of view. ENHANCED AUGMENTED REALITY REFLEX SYSTEM Can you hear me? Maybe you need a nice set of EARRS?! I'm so funny. The EARRS system is a unique blend of meat and Matrix, designed to allow faster Matrix activity without the need to fully immerse yourself in the virtual realm. Functioning as a bridge between your central nervous system and the Augmented Reality Matrix around you, EARRS allow you to process Matrix input at Matrix speeds while also letting you respond to it via physical actions combined with DNI and without the total nervous override of full ASIST. These were field-tested by several special-operations groups, and most came back with rave reviews. They saw their operator's ability to interact with both worlds at once, a far greater option than being restricted to slow AR interaction or slumping and being hauled by the team while they went full-VR to deal with electronic hazards. > Can't say I know anyone with a system like this, but it can't be easy to operate between the two realms. Even operating in an intense spam-zone can make the real world impossible to interact with—I can't imagine a system that tries to merge the two worlds. > Balladeer

MOSSBERG AM-CMDT

Shotguns aren't known for their accuracy, but Mossberg hopes the latest version of their venerable AM-CMDT will change that. After merging their classic combat shotgun design with the latest in smartgun technology, Mossberg recently began a marketing campaign aimed at law enforcement and security agencies that declared the AM-CMDT a "perfect balance between accuracy and firepower." While previous versions of the CMDT only used flechette ammunition, the current one is capable of accepting all standard shotgun rounds.

> The accuracy lives up to the hype, but the low ammo capacity doesn't lend itself to full-auto use. With full ammo, you'll get one, maybe two trigger pulls before reload is necessary. Best use for this weapon: pick a target and put it down.

Fill gaps in decking ability

Description

McLovin' is a lesser centaur of European origin. Her human half appears to be of U.K. descent, while her lower half is Friesian, with a black coat.

McElwain is a lesser cousin of European origin. Her human half appears to be of S.R. descent, while her lower half is Thesian, with a black coat. She has had extensive cybernetic augmentation, but keeps it covered with a designer suit and matching white gloves. Despite claiming otherwise, she has embraced the cybernetics, modifying them to appear as medieval armour, oft not seen due to the aforementioned suit.

Background

McLovin was cast out from her tribe at a young age, and was forced to attempt to integrate with the humans for survival. With no name, nor knowledge, it was all too easy for her to be captured by nefarious groups for nefarious means. She was smuggled to a facility in Aztlan, where she was experimented on as part of an attempt to create a technomancer. The scientists there thought that, perhaps, they could use an awakened metasppecies and pervert its magical talents into Matrix form.

What they created was someone with a vendetta, and a little too much Matrix access. Perhaps through luck, or skill, they never noticed her using the 'locked down' cyberdeck they left in her cell to worm her way into their host. It started out small, keycards failing to unlock doors, camera feeds dropping a few seconds of footage, and other near imperceptible failures that flew under the radar. These were, of course, not coincidences: They were McLovin testing her access to the facility's systems.

Over the next few months, eventually years, she gathered a dossier on the facility, and as many others she could find. When the time was ripe, she struck, posting it to as many pro-technomancy data havens on both sides of the shadows she could find, under the handle "McLovin," after a character from one of the flatvids "they" had given her, still thinking she was stuck to whatever intranet access they gave her. This triggered a series of Technoterrorist attacks, as global technomancer and pro-technomancer communities were enraged to the point of extremism. While Aztechnology managed to keep things under wraps, they still pushed the Corporate Court to designate "McLovin" as an international Matrix terrorist, believing the attack had originated from the outside.

In the chaos, most of the technomancers in the blacksite McLovin was stored in, and McLovin herself, disappeared. The facility's systems went haywire, as the host itself turned against the occupants. Years of preparation and practice had given McLovin full control of the door and camera systems, and when the Technos spoofed it to invite them MARKs she made contact, waltzing past ICE like she owned the place--because at that point, she did. A single reboot wiped nearly a decade of progress, but the deed was done: McLovin was free.

Still, she needed to wait for the heat to die down. She couldn't just dive back onto the Matrix in the middle of a GOD manhunt, but they didn't know her face. At the suggestion, and with the help, of the technomancers who saved her, she moved to Seattle. Its diversity and proximity to centaur settlements would help her blend into the crowd--as much as a literal horse could blend in, at least. The 'ware that had taken her magic from her came in useful here, allowing her to make it as a hired gun, though having never handled a firearm in her life meant she was a poor shot, relying mostly on her excessive physical capability to shoot straight. Still, with her magic gone, chrome was her way forward, her initiation. She had never learned magic, and so science became her centering.

With limited skill and resources, life was hard, but at least she was free. Sure, sacrifices had to be made to pay the bills, but at least they were being paid. Azech's cover ups helped her more, as the incident didn't reach deep into the public eye, and was soon forgotten among all the other noise of the 6th world, and the time came where McLovin--now calling herself "Grand Guard"--picked up her deck that had been collecting dust, powered down so as to not be detected, and nearly forgotten in a small storage locker she rented.

Thus, the rise of "Grand Guard" began, and McLovin prowled the Matrix once more. Her mostly-useless fixer somehow managed to get her into an elite datahaven, opening her up to more and better paying work, better aligned with her skillset. And all the better if she could meet a few other centaurs or make some more friends. It had been a lonely life until now, after all.
